

King Housing Soon to Break Ground

By Gerry L. Galvan

Groundbreaking for work relating to the new John King Senior Housing (JKSH) complex has now been moved to May.

Originally slated to begin this month, the unforeseen delay was explained by King Senior Center Director LaVergne Keppard as necessary to finalize preparations. "Ours is a federal government project which involves intricate webs of involvement and interests," she said.

Meanwhile, John King, on sick leave from his organization for nearly three months, is confident there shouldn't be any further delays. "We'll move on as scheduled in May 1998."

Comprising 91 units of low-income senior housing with a new senior center just one block to the north of the current King Center, the forthcoming federally-funded project also includes a piece of San Francisco

Unified School District (SFUSD) land currently leased to Early Years Academy, a day care facility with a lease scheduled to expire in 1999.

In the past, a building on the lot on the 500 block of Raymond Avenue has been used by the SFUSD for both kindergarten and extension classes.

During the past year, residents near the proposed project site complained the multi-unit complex would have an adverse effect on its immediate surroundings. One neighbor, James Cowan, wrote a letter to Mayor Brown protesting the proposed construction and distributed flyers listing negative aspects of the new housing to nearby residents.

With a large number of applicants expected to be applying for a limited number of units, a JKSH administrative staff will soon be organized to meet an increased volume of work overseeing both construction of the housing and management once the project is completed.

Community Meeting For Third Street Light Rail Art Enrichment

Representatives from the S.F. Art Commission and Muni are sponsoring a special public meeting with communities along the Bayshore Corridor, from Mission Bay to Visitacion Valley, to discuss possible art enrichment projects related to the new light rail system to be constructed on Third Street from 4th and King Streets south to the CalTrain Bayshore Station near the San Francisco/San Mateo County line.

The meeting will be held Wednesday, Jan. 14 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Southeast Community Facility, 1800 Oakdale Ave. in the Bayview District.

Art Commission staff will explain the artist selection process, how artists will work with Muni's urban designers, as well as coordinate with the Redevelopment Agency's urban designers for Mission Bay and Bayview, and describe the range of possible artworks for the new light rail system. This meeting is an opportunity for various communities to ask questions and give feedback on the art enrichment aspect of the transit project prior to the beginning of the artist selection process.

New Tax Laws And Other Services Greet Californians This Tax Season

Free assistance, easier filing and some new tax laws are in store for California taxpayers this year, according to the Franchise Tax Board (FTB).

ELECTRONIC FILING

A quick way to receive your tax refund is to file electronically. New with this year's electronic filing program are direct deposit of refunds and the availability of online electronic filing services through the Internet. Besides fast refunds, electronically filed returns are more accurate than paper returns, which reduces processing costs and delays.

TeleFile offers the same benefits as electronic filing—fast refunds and accurate returns. A 10 minute phone call to a toll free telephone line is all it takes to file. TeleFile is by invitation only. FTB is mailing 1.8 million Californians a special booklet in the mail. Last year only single filers could TeleFile but this year the program was expanded to include married couples. Booklets are sent to taxpayers that generally qualify to file on form 540EZ. For those who received a TeleFile booklet, be sure to hold onto it. Since each booklet contains a personal identification number, FTB cannot replace lost booklets.

FREE TAX ASSISTANCE

Tax help on the Internet! FTB has tax forms, the answers to the most frequently asked tax questions, legal rulings, news releases and other information on the Internet. Visit FTB's home page at <http://www.ftb.ca.gov>

Free tax help is also readily available through FAST (Fast Answers about State Taxes). The FAST telephone service answers the most commonly asked state tax questions, allows taxpayers to find out about the status of their refunds, and lets taxpayers order both state and federal tax forms. The FAST number is 1-800-338-0505. Taxpayers can refer to the back of their tax booklet for instructions. Also FTB extends its general toll-free information line hours start-

VVTF Subcommittees Report Findings

Four sub-committees of the Visitacion Valley Task Force (VVTF) gave reports to the membership and audience Dec. 13 as the organization concluded its fourth year of operation before the holidays.

VVTF members also updated their roster of active participants and sub-area representatives from the Valley's seven geographic regions.

Having met twice, the Safety Committee determined it would hire a part-time coordinator to run the program and do outreach in the community. Several benchmarks, including community relations, conflict resolution and emergency training have been drafted for further study.

An Environmental Committee is also meeting to determine the impact various actions, including toxic cleanup, hazardous waste and new construction, have on the neighborhood. Meanwhile, an Evaluation Committee is devising a plan to monitor and present updated information on various government-funded organizations in the Valley, while a Bylaws Committee is meeting to identify and revise language of the VVTF bylaws.

TASK FORCE TRAINING

Rita Ardan announced individual interviews would be conducted for Task Force members by Community Boards at the Village on Wednesday, Jan. 21 from 2 to 7:30 p.m. Future meetings would involve a needs assessment and a workshop based on information collected from interviews.

BEACON CENTER

Beacon Director Reba Rose outlined the program's various activities while distributing literature and detailing the center's future plans. At least 15 after school programs for youth currently operate with plans to add more activities for adults.

PLAYGROUNDS AND PARKS

Anne Secman summarized the various activities of Friends of Visitacion Valley Parks, dedicated to preserving open space in the neighborhood. Group events drew public attention to

"Day of Dialogue" for Visitacion Valley At Community Center on January 18

Visitacion Valley will have its own forum on Sunday, Jan. 18 at the Community Center gym when The Notional Days of Dialogue on Race Relations takes place across the country from Jan. 14-19.

Community Boards is organizing the 1:30 p.m. event at 66 Raymond Ave. and scheduling Mayor Willie Brown as opening speaker.

Valley resident Rita Adrian is one of the event's organizers who sees communication as a necessary building block of a well-functioning community.

In describing the upcoming event, Community Boards states: "Dialogues are not chit-chats nor ultimate solutions. Dialogues are steps in understanding cultural differences and human commonalities. Increased understanding can enhance individuals' lives and build a more cohesive community."

Neighbors Saddened by Fatal Fire

A TV news crew on the scene reported later that day of the fatal Sawyer Street fire. -Gerry L. Galvan

A police officer called in a report as a stunned Maria Mendoza stood by her car damaged in a hit-and-run accident on Sawyer Street.

By Gerry L. Galvan

Visitacion Valley neighbors were awakened at 2:30 a.m. Christmas Day to find a blazing inferno in a home at 450 Sawyer St.

The fire claimed the life of 10-year-old Wilson Truong, one time student at Visitacion Valley Elementary School, and caused serious injuries to Clement Chan, his stepfather who jumped from a second story window.

Both Chan's wife Angela and her daughter Elizabeth, 5, were earlier able to escape the fire unharmed. Cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Rogelio Tolentino, who lives adjacent to the location, expressed concern about the seemingly long time it took trucks and equipment to get to the Chan home. He said fire trucks arrived at the scene some 15 minutes after another resident had alerted him to the early morning blaze before he called 911.

Closest to the fire is a station at Girard and Wilde Streets. A station on Geneva Avenue at Schwerin Street that was once a part of the Daly City

Fire Department has been closed for about a year.

HIT-AND-RUN ACCIDENT

A custodian Visitacion Valley Middle School was involved in a hit-and-run collision on Sawyer Street at Leland Avenue the afternoon of Nov. 23. Maria Mendoza told the Grapevine she was on her way to work at the school when she saw a car zooming at her at a high speed. The other vehicle, which immediately fled the scene, struck Mendoza's car with enough force to spin in around at least three times, shaking the driver beyond description.

ROBBERY AT VALLEY BANK

A man who spoke in a low voice approached a window at the Bank of America branch on Leland Avenue on Dec. 29 and ordered a teller to fill his envelope with cash. A bank employee said the suspect, who then fled with the cash, appeared to be armed.

Branch Manager Colleen San Diego declined to comment on the incident beyond stating that a robbery had occurred at the bank.

Plan in State Assembly for Protecting Coastal Water Quality and Marine Life

Members of the State Assembly released a comprehensive agenda Jan. 6 for protecting California's marine life, coastal water quality and access to the coast.

"The coast is California's most valuable economic and natural resource," said Shelley. "Yet our marine life is endangered, our coastal waters are polluted, and in many areas there is limited access to the coast."

State of the Coast and Ocean 1998 sets the following priorities to pursue this year:

- *Implement pollution prevention projects;
- *Strengthen enforcement and implementation of the Clean Water Act;
- *Provide oversight for aggressive implementation of the Bay Protection and Toxic Cleanup Program;

*Open more coastal public accessways;

*Invest in shoreline erosion prevention and restoration;

*Modernize fisheries management with a proactive and accountable management structure and enhance the effectiveness of marine sanctuaries; and

*Develop a comprehensive coastal wetlands protection program.

"This agenda addresses the major problems facing our state's coastline," said Shelley. "It also ensures that we leave our coast healthier and more accessible than we found it."

Shelley noted that for San Francisco, enactment of this package will keep the multi-billion dollar fishing industry alive, will ensure clean water and beaches for swimmers, surfers and hikers, and will control erosion at beaches like Fort Funston.

Views Concerning Renovation of Valley Playground

Following is a letter sent Dec. 15, 1997 to Marvin Yee of S.F. Recreation and Park Department.

Refer: Visitacion Valley Playground Renovation

I am writing to say that the community residents that attended Visitacion Valley Task Force meetings and a lot of other community meetings are very supportive in the efforts of the Friends of Visitacion Valley Parks to revitalize and improve the neighborhood parks.

The Campbell/Rutland mini-park has needed to be improved for many years. Great care must be used when designing the revitalized mini-park to insure that all the areas within the park can be observed from the streets and sidewalks. Hedges and bushes should be maintained to under two feet and trees should have branches trimmed to a height over 6 to 8 feet. A sun-screen awning over the picnic tables should provide shade to avoid the use of bushes or hedges as shade. Security lighting should be installed.

The Visitacion Valley Playground has also received community support for improvement and revitalization. The consensus of the Task Force, the community and the neighbors that live near the park was that public safety would be the prime design factor. Vandalism, drug dealing, alcohol related problems, and people in the park creating disturbances after dark and after 10 p.m. were extremely dangerous problems for the community and residents that lived near the park. The life threatening activities that took place in and around the park led to the closure and abandonment of the park.

Community suggestions to achieve maximum public safety are:

(1) The police officers that patrol the area should participate in the design of the security lighting and the landscape design to insure good visibility within the entire park.

(2) The staff of Park and Recreation should work with the police department to insure safety within the park.

(3) An extra room should be provided within the new clubhouse for a police drop-in office. The room should be large enough to accommodate a desk, some chairs, a telephone, water cooler, and a file cabinet. The patrol officers would have keys so they could use the office any time, day or night. This would add to random time surveillance. A bicycle rack would also be installed.

(4) Security lighting would be installed around the clubhouse and the children's play area. The Task Force would try to get a pilot program to install a remote surveillance television camera with a monitor hook-up at the Williams Street police station.

(5) A Park and Recreation staff person would be on-site full time and for extended hours during the summer; this would provide a more secure atmosphere.

(6) Drug Free Zone and This Park is Closed from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. signs would be posted on the perimeter fences.

(7) The Park and Recreation Department should make a combined effort with all of the community organizations to try to use a portion of the satellite organizations' sports and after school programs to insure greater use of the park. This would also increase the amount of adult supervision within the park.

Our committee will submit more information as we receive it.

Thank you for your time,
Ralph Oroquita

Medical Team Learns Lessons in Nicaragua

San Francisco--Reflecting on six long, busy days in Nicaragua where the medical team he headed conducted orthopaedic surgeries, lectures and clinics for local surgeons, David Atkin, M.D., of St. Luke's Hospital said, "We learn more than we teach on these trips."

Seventeen surgeons and support staff from the San Francisco Bay Area, Florida and Texas returned to the United States recently from a trip Atkin termed "an overwhelming success." The trip, from Dec. 6-15 was sponsored by Operation Rainbow-Orthopaedics, a San Francisco-based charitable medical organization that coordinates orthopaedic surgical procedures in areas where it is unavailable. It was Atkin's third week-long tour in Nicaragua for Operation Rainbow-Orthopaedics, and he said, "This was the best trip yet."

Back in his routine at St. Luke's Hospital, Atkin reflected on some stark differences between society there and in the United States.

"For some on our team it was their first time out of the United States and they were amazed at how relaxed and polite the Nicaraguan people are and the teamwork among their doctors and staff," he said. "They work very hard together without any complaining or tension. And there is their strong Catholic faith. When it comes to medicine, the attitude is 'You do the best you can, but it's in God's hands.'"

A major difference in health care between the two societies is the atmosphere in the United States and its emphasis on competition and the bottom line, said Atkin. For him, service with Operation Rainbow "recharges my energy. Many of my patients who live in the Mission and Bayview-Hunters Point are humble and appreciative, and I am rewarded to serve them."

Atkin said he and his colleagues transported about 2,000 pounds of medical supplies and equipment and left most of it in Matagalpa, Esteli and Leon. They performed about 26 surgical procedures on children, including a number of spinal surgeries--most of them to correct scoliosis in girls under the age of 12--and conducted lectures on shoulder, knee and spinal procedures each morning for the Nicaraguan surgeons.

"Their goal is to do this themselves," said Catherine Cusic, a physician's assistant on the St. Luke's staff. Numerous surgical procedures were preceded by teaching clinics and, Atkin said, the local surgeons were then able to get involved, performing the procedures under the visitors' guidance.

Another major accomplishment of the trip was establishing an arthroscopy center at the University Hospital of Leon.

Others on the trip included 13 volunteers from Northern California--among them five physicians and support staff from St. Luke's Hospital, four from UCSF and an anesthesiologist from Valley Medical Center in San Jose--and five physicians and support staff from Florida and Texas. Each of the volunteers donated their time and the physicians paid their own expenses. Operation Rainbow covered all other travel and other expenses incidental to the trip, which Atkin estimated at $15,000.

Operation Rainbow, an all-volunteer effort begun in Houston by a group of plastic surgeons, has spread through the country with the establishment of independent chapters. The San Francisco chapter details exclusively with orthopaedic problems. This year it will have sponsored two trips to Nicaragua and one each to Guatemala and Honduras, said Laura Escobosa, volunteer coordinator. Seven trips are planned in 1998.

A Letter to Our Community About the Beacon Center

By now, you may have heard:

The California State Legislature has enacted a new law concerning individuals and entities who provide services in the public schools. We have heard this new tougher law was passed just after a case where a custodian in a school in California was charged with murdering a student.

The new law requires that anyone who has more than limited contact (defined as "one-time and/or accidental encounters with District students while performing certain services under an agreement with the District") must be fingerprinted and have a criminal record check. "Limited contact" definition also includes "one day performances conducted before a group of students, and construction work performed during non-school hours or on a portion of campus physically separated from students." Further, it states that any individual having more than limited contact "must not have been arrested or convicted of any serious or violent felonies, as defined by the California Penal Code."

We must ask all those individuals and community based organizations working with Valley youth through the Visitacion Valley Community Beacon to submit fingerprints and receive a background clearance as soon as possible. We are in the process of complying with this law right now, but meanwhile we are working to get clarification and will be finding out more about this new law and its effect on our employees and programs.

This new regulation may be problematic for community organizations such as ours for many reasons. Some of the most effective influences on kids have been persons who have learned their lessons "the hard way" and now wish to share their experiences with youth to help them make better, more healthy life choices.

It is possible for a person to obtain "(1) a certificate of rehabilitation and pardon obtained pursuant to the Penal Code or (2) proof to the sentencing court that at least one year's rehabilitation for school employment purposes has taken place after a conviction of a serious felony, which is not also a violent felony." It is not yet clear exactly by what process one can achieve this, except that it is done through the court.

We all agree, however, that we all have the best interests of the students at heart, and so does the School District and the State Legislature. How the matter will be finally resolved is yet to be seen. We'll try to keep our community informed of our progress in finding the solutions to this dilemma.

State Wants Your Tax Return, Late or Not

Nearly a half million Californians who haven't filed their 1996 income tax returns will soon hear about it, according to the Franchise Tax Board (FTB).

Individuals who did not file a return last year but received income from California sources will receive a letter requesting the delinquent return. The letter gives late filers 30 days to file their return or show why a tax return is not due.

If you get a letter, be sure not to ignore it. Those who ignore the letter will get a tax assessment with penalties of up to 50 percent of their tax liability and a $71 filing enforcement fee.

Each year after the Oct. 15 extended due date passes, FTB uses more than 200 million income records received from employers, banks, the Internal Revenue Service and other sources to compare the returns filed with the income information. Taxpayers who are missing a return are then contacted.

According to the FTB, individuals with income of $10,384 or more ($20,768 for a married couple) are required to file a tax return. FTB urges those who receive the letter to respond immediately to avoid needless penalties.

For questions about the notification letter, taxpayers can contact FTB toll free at 1-800-545-5009. To get tax forms and answers to frequently asked tax questions, taxpayers can call 1-800-338-0505 or access the Internet at <http://www.ftb.ca.gov>

New Laws Crack Down on Gun Use, Sex Offenders and Domestic Violence

Californians now have a safer state thanks to a host of new laws passed during the 1997 legislative session. Additional tax cuts and new laws governing school hiring practices are also now in effect. Of the new laws.

"10-20-Life" (AB 4 Bordonaro) calls for stiffer sentences for gun violence. "10-20-Life" will increase sentences for crimes committed with guns. Ten years will automatically be added to the sentence of anyone who uses a gun to commit a crime. Twenty years will be added if the gun is fired, and a person who hurts or kills someone with a gun will be sentenced to 25 years to life. No plea bargaining, no time off for good behavior, no deals.

School Bus Safety (AB 1297 Morrow) makes it mandatory for school bus drivers to flash red warning lights every time children get on or off a school bus, regardless of whether they plan to cross the street. Cars in both directions are required to stop.

Sex Offender Registration (AB 290 Alby) requires convicted sex offenders to register with local law enforcement agencies upon discharge or parole and to update that registration annually.

Stalking Law (AB 350 Firestone) makes it easier to prosecute stalkers by allowing peace officers to issue an emergency protective order where they believe a person is guilty of stalking an individual.

Domestic Violence (AB 340 Alby) provides that restraining orders or protective orders issued in domestic violence cases take precedence over any conflicting civil orders.

Inmate Release Notification (AB 139 Poochigian) requires the state to notify victims or their families if a violent felon is released from state prison to a community within 1,000 miles of their home. (Past law only required notice if the felon was within 25 miles.)

Endangered Species Reform Act (AB 21 Olberg) eliminates red tape for parties that have obtained a federal permit and exempts having parties from having to comply with the duplicative California Endangered Species Act if they have already obtained federal permission.

Underground Storage Tanks (AB 1491 Cunneen) prohibits the depositing of petroleum into underground storage tanks that are not up to code. It requires a permit to be issued and kept current for all underground storage tanks.

Tax Cut Package (SB 1233 Lockyer/Pringle) includes nearly $1 billion in tax cuts for middle class Californians. It provides a tax benefit for families by increasing the state's Dependent Tax Credit by $50 this year and an additional increase in 1999. It also provides capital gains tax relief for homeowners.

Education: Life Sciences and Conservation Project (AB 624 Cuneen) creates the Life Science and Conservation Education Project of 1998 to provide students in grades six, seven and eight an opportunity to learn about biological conservation and public policy.

School Safety (AB 1612 Alby) prohibits school districts from hiring anyone that has been convicted of a violent or serious felony.

Body Piercing (AB 99 Runner) requires teenagers and minors to obtain parental permission to pierce most body parts.

School Immunizations (AB 381 Takasugi) requires all students entering seventh grade after July 1, 1999 to be immunized against hepatitis B.

Winter Festival at VVES Celebrates a Season for Sharing

Once Again, students of Visitacion Valley Elementary School (VVES) celebrated the Winter Festival by sharing their diverse cultural heritage. Two multicultural assemblies on Dec. 18 in the school auditorium featured student performances from Jingle Bells in English and Chinese, to Feliz Navidad, to A Celebration of Kwanzaa.

Santa (Latchkey Director Mr. Nofoa, Jr.) delivered toys donated by the PTA to all the children of Little Vis, naughty or nice. This eight-year tradition, together with Thanksgiving food baskets and turkeys (from Nationwide Paper and the PTA) really helped brighten-up the holiday season for many families of the school community.

Santa (Mr. Nofoa, Jr.) delivered toys to all the children.

A humorous version of Jingle Bells was performed in a skit by Mrs. Jeung's Chinese bilingual kindergarten class.

Students of the Leadership Club After School Program lit candles and performed "A Celebration of Kwanzaa," as directed by Mr. Edwards.

Guest Pablo Jasis accompanied by his guitar joined the Leadership Club students in singing "De Colores," as directed by Mrs. Uribe.

"Mele Kaliemaka"--Mrs. Flores' 5th graders brought the Hawaiian Islands to the school stage for Christmas.

ing today through Apr 15 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday. The number is 1-800-852-5711.

Another free service is offered through the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program. Trained volunteers staff nearly 1,500 sites throughout California to provide free help to low-income, senior, disabled and non-English speaking persons. Many military bases also provide this service for members of the U.S. armed forces. Check the Internet or call FTB at 1-800-852-5711 for the location nearest you.

AVOID THESE ERRORS

FTB advises taxpayers to double check this math, their California exemption credit (which differs from the federal credit), and their tax from the tax table. Errors in these areas are the most common ones made. Errors can delay refund checks. Each year, Californians make nearly a million errors on their state tax returns.

Taxpayers who had two or more employers during 1997 should remember to check to see if they are eligible for a refund of excess State Disability Insurance (SDI). To be eligible, an employee must have had at least two employers, received more than $31,767 in wages, and the total SDI (or Voluntary Plan Disability Insurance) withheld was more than $158,84. Be sure to include the excess on your California tax return. See the instructions located in the tax booklets.

FAST REFUNDS

To get fast refunds, FTB encourages taxpayers to TeleFile or file electronically through a qualified tax preparer or online filing service. Refunds are mailed within 10 days. If you cannot TeleFile or otherwise file electronically, FTB reminds taxpayers that the earlier they file, the quicker their refund will arrive. Taxpayers who file in January or February generally get their refunds within two to four weeks. Those filing in March or April can expect to wait--up to six to eight weeks, to receive their refund check. Last year, 7.5 million Californians received a refund that averaged $400.

NEW LEGISLATION

New tax provisions taking effect this year bring about several changes that could affect the California tax return. Some of the changes include.

*California conformed to the new homeowner capital gains provisions that exclude capital gains from home sales taking place after May 6, 1997, of up to $500,000 for married couples.

*Non-working spouses can now deduct up to $2,000 a year for Individual Retirement Accounts.

*California passed the Taxpayers Bill of Rights II. Following up on our 1989 enactment, provisions of the new law include: interest attributable to unreasonable errors by FTB may be canceled, FTB now assumes the burden of proof to justify its position when considering awarding appeal and litigation costs, and FTB must make a reasonable attempt to notify taxpayers when unable to locate their account within 60 days of the receipt of payment.

*California has new tax credits for rice straw uses other than burning and for farmworker housing construction.

LAW CHANGES

Starting in 1998, the dependent credit increases from $68 to $120 and in 1999 increases to $222. Although the new increased rates do not affect this year's tax return, taxpayers may want to consider changing their withholding amounts now to start realizing the savings sooner.

CAN'T PAY BY APRIL 15?

Taxpayers who are experiencing a financial hardship and cannot pay their taxes in full can generally arrange to make monthly installment payments. FTB has streamlined the application and approval process. To apply for an installment payment agreement, use FTB 3567, Installment Agreement

Request. Taxpayers can download the form from the Internet or order it by calling FTB at 1-800-338-0505.

FTB reminds taxpayers that penalties and interest still accrue on past due amounts even if a taxpayer is making installment payments. There is no provision in the law that allows FTB to forgive interest and penalties for an installment payment agreement.

New School Bus Law Will Improve Safety; Impact California Motorists

Beginning Jan 1, California motorists are now required to halt their vehicles whenever a school bus is in the process of loading or unloading students. This change in existing law was prompted by state legislation passed in 1997 that now requires school bus drivers to flash red warning lights at every stop where children enter and exit the bus.

"No longer will California be the exception when it comes to school bus safety," said Assemblyman Bill Morrow (R-Oceanside). He introduced Assembly Bill 1297 now mandating that a school bus' red warning light system be activated to halt oncoming traffic whenever it is stopped for the purpose of loading or unloading students regardless of whether these students must cross the street. Previous law only required that a bus' red lights flash at those stops where it was known that students had to cross the street.

Requiring flashing warning lights at all school bus stops will significantly reduce the potential for auto accidents involving students, especially the younger ones, who are much more likely to inadvertently or unexpectedly cross the street. In fact, 49 other states, including New York, Florida and Texas, already provide this high level of protection for their children.

Morrow introduced this new law on behalf of two of his constituents, Tom and Barbara Lanni of Laguna Niguel, who tragically lost their seven-year-old son three years ago in a school bus traffic accident.

Their son, Tommy, was struck and killed in 1994 by a pickup truck as he attempted to cross a street after disembarking from a school bus he had been riding for the first time. Because the youngster was not expected to cross the street at this stop, the flashing warning lights of his bus were not activated, and thus, the passing motorist who hit him had no warning that a child might be crossing.

This fatal accident may have been avoided had the driver been required to flash the bus' red warning lights at all stops, as the new law provides. For this reason, the provisions of AB 1297 were named the Thomas Edward Lanni Schoolbus Safety Act of 1997.

In addition to the flashing light requirement, the new law will also allow school districts, in consultation with the CHP, to exempt out certain stops from the flashing light requirement which create a unique traffic hazard due to roadway design, or close proximity to an intersection.

Meeting at Schlage Lock Details S.F. PUC Plan To Improve Sewer System Along Sunnydale

Members of the S F Public Utilities Commission (PUC) further detailed plans to improve Sunnydale's inadequate sewer system in a community meeting Dec. 11 at Schlage Lock.

In a project scheduled to commence next year, the PUC is proposing a two-part project both east and west of Bayshore Boulevard that could be constructed concurrently. Phase 1 would employ a tunneling construction method utilized to install a 12-foot diameter pipe east of Bayshore to the Sunnydale Pump Station at Hamey Way. Phase 2 would require open-cut construction along Sunnydale Avenue to install 6-to-8-foot diameter pipe.

Underground connections would also be constructed and placed at key intersections to connect new and existing sewers.

For the past 20 years, rainwater runoff from heavy rains has exceeded the capacity of existing neighborhood sewers causing flooding in both Visitacion Valley and Sunnydale. When completed, the new sewer system will provide capacity to collect and transport storm water runoff combined with local sewage from residents and businesses to the Southeast Water Pollution Control Plant.

What Americans Think About Nutrition and Food

Two new nationally representative surveys on consumer trends provide a window into American' nutritional beliefs. The American Dietetic Association's (ADA) Nutrition Trends Survey 1997 and the Food Marketing Institute (FMI) and Prevention Magazine's Shopping for Health 1997, found consumers said they understand the critical link between nutrition and good health. That is the good news. The not-so-good-news? Almost two-thirds (61 percent) said they are not doing all they can to eat healthfully.

According to Betty Nowlin, R.D., nutrition education specialist and spokesperson for ADA, "Fortunately the reported obstacles to good nutrition can be conquered with a few practical changes that fit individual lifestyles, tastes and preferences."

Diet concerns continue to center primarily on one nutrient, fat. According to Shopping for Health, 81 percent of shoppers expressed concern about the fat in their diet. Yet nearly one-third (32 percent) are not sure how to lower their dietary fat.

Consumers also expressed confusion and frustration about the nutrition information they receive. Shopping for Health reports that nearly three-quarters of shoppers (74 percent) think there is too much conflicting information about food and health.

Other survey findings:

*Most Americans believe in "good" and "bad" foods.

*Consumers are confused about what constitutes a healthful diet.

*Nearly three-in-four (71 percent) said they watch their portion sizes, while less than half (48 percent) pay attention to calories consumed.

Nutrition Trends and Shopping for Health have reported consumer nutrition trends since 1991. Nutrition Trends is conducted and reported every other year, and Shopping for Health is an annual survey.

Save Money and the Environment, Too

by David Assmann
S.F. Recycling Program

Helping to preserve the environment and saving money are not mutually exclusive. In fact, some of the best things you can do for the environment can also bring you substantial savings. The San Francisco Recycling Program has determined, for example, that a family of four can save more than $3,000 a year by buying reusable and durable products and buying products in large sizes.

When you buy groceries, you are actually paying more for the packaging than farmers are paid to produce the food in the packaging. But by buying large sizes you will buy less packaging. Because packaging accounts for one-third of household waste, choosing larger sizes reduces the amount of waste ending up in our landfill. And since 10 cents out of every shopping dollar is used to pay for packaging, buying the largest size you can will save you money. For a family of four the savings add up quickly. Here are some examples:

*Save $118 a year ($2.28 a week) by buying cereal in a large box instead of in individual snack packs. You also produce 50 percent less waste.

Muni Introduces POP on New Embarcadero Line

San Francisco Municipal Railway (Muni) has announced a Proof of Payment (POP) fare program designed to make better use of existing vehicles and facilities, and to make the Muni Metro system more efficient.

Starting Jan. 10, POP will be implemented on the new E-Embarcadero line—also called the Metro Extension or MMX—at the following station stops: Embarcadero Station; Folsom and The Embarcadero; Brannan and The Embarcadero; and CalTrain/4th and King Streets.

POP for Muni patrons requires that riders purchase a ticket at a fare machine before entering a platform or have a valid Muni pass, transfer or regional pass with a Muni sticker. To purchase a ticket, patrons must first choose a fare type and then deposit money into the fare machine.

Fare types available are: Adult, $1.00; Discount/Senior and Youth, 35 cents. Tickets issued by fare machines are valid until the time indicated and may be used as transfers to other Muni lines.

Transfers from other lines are good on POP vehicles and station platforms until the last time shown on the transfer. A rider's monthly Caltrain ticket with valid Peninsula Pass sticker is also good as proof of payment.

POP trains will still have a Muni Metro operator, but the operator will no longer check passes or collect fares. With POP in place, passengers may exit or board from any train door. Passengers can still communicate with the operator by using the intercoms located on the wall at either end of the metro cars.

This is not an honor system. This is a proof-of-payment system where, initially, San Francisco police officers will be performing random inspections to ensure that all passengers have valid proof of payment. Passengers without proof of payment may be subject to citation and a fine of $126.

"Our goal is to make service more efficient," said Muni director Emilio Cruz. "With POP, Muni can expedite the loading and unloading of passengers, and ideally improve our service schedule. If we can get patrons to help by making sure riders exit before passengers board, we're that much closer to making the program work."

POP has operated at two stations on the M-line--Stonestown and S.F. State--since 1995. Proof of payment programs are also widely used in Europe and Asia, as well as by other rail systems in the United States, among them San Diego, Sacramento and San Jose.

The E-Embarcadero line will open Jan. 10, initially running as a shuttle between 4th and King (Caltrain) and Embarcadero station in the Muni Metro subway. Existing peak-hour lines 80X, 81X and 82X bus routes and regular Muni lines (15, 30, 32, 42 and 45) will continue to operate in addition to the E-Embarcadero shuttle service.

*Save $175 a year ($3.37 a week) by buying apple juice in gallon sizes instead of in single serve sizes.

*Save $95 a year ($1.82 a week) by buying bottled water in a large plastic jug instead of in 6-packs of 16 oz bottles. You also produce 80 percent less waste.

A San Francisco price comparison study of 56 commonly purchased grocery items shows that shoppers can save 40 percent by buying products in larger packages. The study included commonly purchased items such as milk, cheese, juice, yogurt, detergent, rice, sugar, meat, shampoo, cookies, soup and canned vegetables. The basket of 56 products purchased in small or single serve sizes cost $137.88, whereas the same items, purchased in economy or larger sizes, cost $82.29.

The most dramatic differences were found in sugar and popcorn, which were 82 percent cheaper in the larger sizes, coffee, which was 80 percent less expensive, and rice, which was 72 percent less expensive. Not all of the items were perishable items. For example, buying cotton swabs in bulk saves consumers 71 percent, and shampoo is 40 percent less expensive in larger bottles.

We've been conditioned to believe that products need packaging. But that isn't applicable to many products. For example, many hardware store items, such as screws, nails, screwdrivers, hammers and extension cords, can easily be sold in bulk bins or hung from hooks. In cases where you have a choice between buying items in bulk or in wasteful, non-recyclable blister packs or plastic cylinders, choosing the bulk item is usually cheaper and creates far less waste.

Many food items have their own natural packaging. Bananas, for example, don't need to go into a plastic bag. In fact, most produce items do not need the extra packaging you find in many supermarkets. Instead of buying carrots or tomatoes shrink-wrapped in plastic, put these items in your cart without any packaging at all. If a product doesn't need packaging, tell your store manager you would prefer it in a bulk bin.

There are other options for no packaging that may not be readily apparent. For example, do you really need your dry cleaning wrapped in a plastic bag that will be thrown away as soon as you get home? And remember, getting ice cream in a cone instead of a cup allows you to eat the package.

Another way to save money and help the environment is to buy products that can be reused over and over again. By buying durable and reusable products, you reduce the number of products that have to be manufactured and help preserve the environment. Here are a few good choices:

*Use rechargeable batteries in toys, flashlights and radios. You can save $200 a year by using rechargeable batteries instead of disposables in one cassette player alone (based on two hours listening/day).

*Use cloth diapers instead of disposable diapers. You'll save $600 per child by using a diaper laundry service instead of disposable diapers.

*Use a real camera instead of a disposable one. You'll save $144 a year (based on 24 pictures/month).

There are numerous other reusable products, including sponges and dish cloths; cloth napkins and towels; refillable pens, pencils and lighters; washable plates, cups and silverware; and electric razors or razors with replaceable blades. For more information on waste prevention and reuse, including how to get a free copy of our Environmental Shopping Guide, call the San Francisco Recycling Program hotline at 554-RECYCLE.

Consumers Can Save Money While Helping The Environment

The third annual Shop Smart campaign will kick off in January with a focus on how consumers can save money by purchasing reusable products and products with less packaging. "Save Money and the Environment Too" is the theme for this year's campaign, the largest environmental campaign in the Bay Area. One hundred and ten cities and counties are partnering with 400 supermarkets, the California Integrated Waste Management Board, and Pacific Bell Directory to bring shoppers the message about how they can help the environment while shopping.

"A family of four can save $3,000 a year simply by buying products in the largest size they can use and by buying reusable items," said David Assmann, public outreach coordinator for the San Francisco Recycling Program. "For example, buying cereal in a large box instead of individual snack packs can save an average family $118 a year while producing 50 percent less waste. Buying apple juice in gallon sizes instead of single serving sizes will save families $175 a year. You can save $200 a year by using rechargeable batteries instead of disposable batteries in a cassette recorder used just two hours a day."

Campaign messages will appear on more than six million shopping bags during the campaign, which runs from Jan. 12 through Feb. 7. Consumers can get information about this nationally award-winning consumer education program by calling the San Francisco Recycling Hotline at (415) 554-RECYCLE.

Greater Community Involvement Sought for Visitacion Valley Schools

Stephen Kaplan assisted a student during a reading exercise.

San Francisco School Volunteers (SFSV) is launching an initiative to create and strengthen partnerships between Visitacion Valley and the neighborhood's public schools.

In order to deepen and broaden the involvement of the community in the schools, SFSV is working in each of the neighborhoods to create greater community awareness of the schools in the area and what, specifically, community members can do to help their schools.

For example, many students can benefit from the individual help of a volunteer working with students in the classroom to improve their reading, math or computer skills. Small businesses and merchants' associations can develop a partnership with a school in their community and speak to students about the importance of school in the job world. Religious fraternal organizations can help schools with tutoring programs and field trips.

Stephen Kaplan, school/community coordinator from SFSV, is the staff member responsible for making outreach and understanding the resources in the Valley as a means of creating greater community involvement in Visitacion Valley schools.

Kaplan has been meeting with the principals of schools in Visitacion Valley to more fully understand school priorities, plans for the future and how communities can become involved.

"We see that all schools are really receptive to the involvement of their communities," said Kaplan. "Schools are recognizing that merchants associations, civic associations, parents, religious organizations--the full gamut of community life--can be a real asset to improving public education."

Over the next several months, Kaplan will be contacting organizations and community leaders in Visitacion Valley to find out how, and in what ways they want to become involved in their local public schools. He can be reached through SFSV at (415) 274-0250.

"Community involvement in public education in San Francisco is one of the keys to success," said Kaplan. "I am looking forward to working with the Visitacion Valley community to create good schools for students."

Once Again, students of Visitacion Valley Elementary School (VVES) celebrated the Winter Festival by sharing their diverse cultural heritage. Two multicultural assemblies on Dec. 18 in the school auditorium featured student performances from Jingle Bells in English and Chinese, to Feliz Navidad, to A Celebration of Kwanzaa.

Santa (Latchkey Director Mr. Nofoa, Jr.) delivered toys donated by the PTA to all the children of Little Tis, naughty or nice. This eight-year tradition, together with Thanksgiving food baskets and turkeys (from Nationwide Paper and the PTA) really helped brighten-up the holiday season for many families of the school community.

S.F. School Volunteers Saturday Training

San Francisco School Volunteers is offering a Saturday Training Institute for parents, community members and school volunteers addressing this theme: You Can Support Student Success!

Skill-building workshops will include What You Should Know About the New Scholastics Language Arts materials and Learning Disabilities

Awareness Workshops will take place on Saturday, Jan. 31 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Edison Elementary School, 3431 22nd St. For more information or to register, call 274-0250.

This Month in S.F. History

JANUARY
 8. In 1880, Joshua Norton, a onetime successful City businessman, died. When ill-fated grain speculation left him penniless, Norton declared himself Emperor of the United States and Protector of Mexico, issued his own currency, sympathetically accepted by local shopkeepers, and went on to become one of San Francisco's most colorful oddball characters.
 9. In 1847, then known as Yerba Buena, the City's first newspaper was published by Samuel Brannan, a four-paged weekly called the California Star. In 1849, the first S.F. bank, the Exchange and Deposit office, was established on Kearny St. In 1857, San Francisco was rocked by a 7:45 a.m. earthquake felt in San Diego.
 16. In 1865, brothers Charles and Michael de Young published the first issue of their Daily Dramatic Chronicle, a free theatre paper which soon grew to become the San Francisco Chronicle.

 22. In 1850, the Alta California, formed by merging the Californian and California Star, first two newspapers published in the state, became California's first daily in switching from a tri-weekly schedule. In 1939, Aquatic Park adjacent to Fort Mason opened.
 27. In 1894, the Midwinter Fair, a City event publicizing the Pacific Coast's mild off-season climate, opened in Golden Gate Park. In 1955, a severe landslide permanently closed a stretch of El Camino del Mar, a scenic drive near Lands End.
 30. In 1847, the City's name officially changed from Yerba Buena to San Francisco.

FIVE YEARS AGO IN THE GRAPEVINE

JANUARY 1993
 *After more than 35 years of service to the neighborhood, Boulevard Cleaners announced it would close in March.
 *Titled A Time for Giving, Visitacion Valley Elementary School hosted its Winter Festival on Dec. 17.

Telecourses Available at S.F. City College

In today's fast changing world, most people need to go back to school to update their knowledge or learn new skills. But because of a busy schedule, most people simply cannot find the time to go back to college. The answer is to take Telecourses from City College of San Francisco.

Telecourses are college credit courses, but instead of going to school one to three times a week, the student watches weekly lessons at home on television. Students can also video tape their lessons which allows them to watch at their convenience and to review their lessons as often as they want.

A Telecourse student only comes to campus three times a semester for an orientation, midterm and a final.

All of City College Telecourses can be applied towards an AA degree conferred by City College and many are transferable to a four year university. Cost for a Telecourse is only $13 a unit plus the cost of a text book. Most City College Telecourses are 3 unit courses.

All Telecourse lessons are broadcast on cable channel 52 (the San Francisco Educational Access cable channel) with many broadcast on KCSM, Channel 60. Lessons are also kept at the Media Center on the Phelan campus of City College of San Francisco. Students who miss a broadcast can go to the Media Center and watch the lesson there. In addition, Telecourses are available for rent.

For the Spring '98 semester, City College is offering 19 different Telecourses: Introduction to Social and Cultural Anthropology, Art of the Western World; Art America; Cosmic Evolution; Mass Media and Society; Ecology and the Human Environment; Chemistry for Nonscientists; Commercial Law; Joseph Campbell: Transformations of Myth Through Time; American Cinema; Elementary French; African History; Living With Health; Beginning Conversational Japanese; Beginning Piano; Conceptual Physics; Ownership and Operation of a Small Business; and Introduction to Theatre.

For more information, call the Telecourse office at 239-3885.

SUMP. THE GRUMP

Forum Focuses on Food Safety and E. coli

Contributing to the ongoing efforts toward a safer food supply from farm-to-table, the Georgetown Center for Food and Nutrition Policy convened a two-day conference, Protecting the Public Against Food-Borne Pathogens: E. coli, recently in Washington, D.C. The conference was co-sponsored by the Association of American Veterinary Medical Colleges and brought together nearly 150 professionals from government, academia, industry and consumer groups

Catherine E. Woteki, Ph.D., R.D., Under Secretary for Food Safety, U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), in the keynote address underscored USDA's commitment to the National Food Safety Initiative and its collaboration with other government agencies.

The conference reviewed the dynamics of recent E. coli outbreaks, an examination of the organism and potential explanations for its seemingly "overnight" emergence

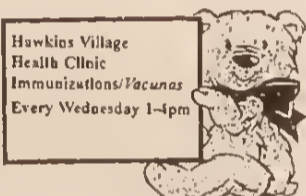

One panel discussed communicating food safety to consumers and promoting food safety education in primary and secondary schools

"In addition to government and industry food safety controls, we must weave food safety education into K-12 curricula," noted David Schmidt, the International Food Information Council's vice president, food safety, and consumer education conference panelist. "Current nutrition resources, like the Food Guide Pyramid and the Dietary Guidelines for Americans, should be used to teach food safety basics as well as good nutrition."

Control methods discussed included sanitation, new technologies for determining E. coli presences well as food irradiation and its potential for ensuring safe food for consumers

"Food irradiation is one complementary preventive strategy in the overall HACCP (hazard analysis critical control points) process," noted Joseph Borsa, Ph.D., MDS Nordion, Kanata, Ontario, Canada. "But, food irradiation does not replace safe food processing, handling and preparation measures."

JANUARY MEETING

Next VVTF meeting will be held Saturday, Jan. 24 from 10:30 a.m. until 12 noon at the Community Center gym, 50 Raymond Ave.

S.F. Suicide Prevention Needs Crisis Volunteers

Are you a good listener? Caring? Supportive? Understanding? Do you want a real challenge? Do you need or want counseling skills? If so, the San Francisco Suicide Prevention (SFSP) needs your help

Founded in 1962, SFSP is the oldest volunteer crisis line in the United States, providing 24-hour telephone counseling free of charge to anyone who calls. More than 56,000 calls are answered each year.

Volunteers are needed to provide emotional support in a non-judgmental manner, to provide crisis management and to provide information and referrals when appropriate. Extensive training is provided. Next training class will begin Jan. 22.

Join and be a part of a San Francisco tradition. Please call (415) 984-1900 for an application packet or more information.

Program Helps Parents With Child Care

In a program designed to assist local low-to-moderate income families in paying for licensed child care for children ages 0-13 years old, the Children's Services Fund of San Francisco Vendor Voucher Program is a collaborative between Wu Yee Children's Services, Audrey L. Smith Child Development Center and Children's Council of San Francisco.

This program is designed to serve single parent families who are working or who have been offered employment, and two parent families, of which either parent is working and/or offered employment, and the other parent is working, or enrolled in school or job training. Through the program, parents will be free to choose any licensed child care provider, as well as receive child care counseling and choosing child care information. For more information, contact Wu Yee Children's Services, 391-8993, Children's Council of San Francisco, 243-0700, or Audrey L. Smith Child Development Center, 292-7747.
